

this morning at the Tucker station and exhaustively questioned two of the three operators who regularly work on the 600-meter wave length—the wave length used for communicating with ships at sea—and who were on duty Sunday night and Monday morning. The third operator who was not present at the time of Mr. Minter's arrival at the station was questioned later in the day.

Operator Can't Recall

The operator who recalled he had "worked the Voltaire" was William Heslar who was on duty from midnight Sunday until 8 o'clock Monday morning. He could not remember, he said, what time he had tried to get the ship, whether it was for the purpose of transmitting a message, or receiving one or whether he had ever succeeded in getting her.

Joseph Plummer, who relieved Heslar at 8 o'clock Monday morning was positive that the first message he had heard from the Vestris was a request to instruct all stations to stand by for a possible S O S, the C. Q. call testified to before Commissioner O'Neill. The time of this call, he said, was 9:10 Monday morning. The next call he heard was the S O S sent out around 10 o'clock.

Everett Davis, the third operator, who was on duty from 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon until midnight, was positive that there had been no messages either to or from the Vestris while he was on duty. Testimony before the United States commissioner shows that the Vestris was on duty Sunday noon and that at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon Chief Engineer Adams concluded there must be a leak somewhere on the starboard side in addition to the leaking wing-door on the port side, to account for all the water that was then coming into the starboard coal bunkers.

Fires Sent to New York

The two radio operators from the Vestris, who were examined, were inconsistent that they knew of no radio message sent out by Capt. Carey before the C. Q. call around 9 o'clock Monday morning. One of them, Charles Vercher, did admit that he had tried several times Sunday afternoon and night to get the Voltaire and had not succeeded. He declared, however, that his efforts to get in touch with her had nothing to do with the list which the Vestris had developed or with her condition.

At the Tucker station it was learned that all the files and records of messages sent and received had been removed Thursday or Friday of last week to the New York offices of the Radiomarine Corporation, presumably for the purpose of facilitating the search which the corporation undertook at the request of Mr. Tuttle. The latter stated tonight he had not yet been informed whether that search had been completed.

The following statement was issued tonight by Mr. Tuttle:

"On Friday last I read into the record of the Vestris inquiry a letter from the British consul general stating that the British government desired to cooperate with the inquiry in every way possible, and suggested the appointment of two naval advisors, one to represent the American Government and the other to represent the owners of the steamship Vestris. I stated at the time that I had recommended to the consul general that the second advisor be the selection and representative of the British government rather than of an interested private party."

"I have been informed today by the consul general that this modification has been approved and that the British government is designating Capt. Henry McConkey, marine superintendent of the Cunard and allied lines in New York.

"Tomorrow I expect to recommend to the court a distinguished marine expert to be the adviser on behalf of the American Government. The two advisers will sit with the United States Commissioner and have the privilege of asking questions of the witnesses, but the inquiry will be conducted by me, and the findings will be made by the commissioner."

Senate Inquiry Doubtful

Although there has been no definite move made to indicate that Congress will take a hand in the investigation of the sinking of the Vestris, Senator Duncan P. Fletcher (Democrat), Florida, ranking member of the Senate committee of commerce, said last night that he has received numerous letters commending his suggestion that such an inquiry should be undertaken.

As members of the Senate begin to gather in the capital, the sinking of the Vestris has been a wide topic of conversation, but so far there has been no avowed intention of a resolution to investigate the affair. Senator Fletcher said he had not definitely decided as to whether he will be the author of a resolution to investigate the fate of the vessel.

WOMAN WIELDS AX TO SLAY ANOTHER

Captured 20 Minutes After Crime, She Admits She Hacked Aged Victim.

LIVED IN SAME HOUSE

Wickliffe, Ky., Nov. 18 (A.P.).—Mrs. Annie Thornton, 65, was beaten and cut to death with an ax in a coal shed at the rear of her home today and twenty minutes later Mrs. Lizette Boudreaux, 40, was taken into custody and admitted, police said, that she had murdered the woman, with whom she had been living.

Mrs. Boudreaux was arrested as she waited to catch a boat that would have taken her across the Ohio River to Cairo, Ill. She is held without bond on a charge of murder.

Mrs. Boudreaux, separated from her husband, had been living at the Thornton home for two weeks, having lived formerly at Paducah, Ky. The two women were at the house together this afternoon. Other members of the family returned later in the day and found the body, skull crushed and otherwise mutilated, and beside it on the floor of the coal shed the bloody ax.

A general alarm was spread and a search for Mrs. Boudreaux started after neighbors reported having seen her leave the house.

Cause for the attack has not been learned.

SAN PEDRO FETE AWAITS HOOVER

The final prayer asked that his mission might be blessed and that he might be brought back in safety.

Throughout a service when he heard a sermon in which Dr. Gardner asserted that faith would meet the problem of conforming science questions with religion, the President-elect sat with folded arms and listened intently. Then he motored back to his home atop San Juan Hill to have luncheon with Mark L. Requa, of San Francisco, and conclude his arrangements for departing.

Stop For School Children.

Along with various others who called were Mayor James Rolph of San Francisco, who planned to accompany the party as far as San Jose. Moving down the California mainland tonight, the President-elect had but one stop scheduled before reaching San Pedro. At Wilmington, Calif., in the vicinity of the port of Los Angeles, his train will stop in order that the school children of that place may get a glimpse of their next President.

The train will move to San Pedro, where it will be met at the dock by Admiral Pratt, of the Pacific fleet, who will escort Mr. Hoover aboard the battleship. The train is scheduled to arrive at 9:45 o'clock in the morning, and the ship will hoist anchor as soon as possible thereafter.

Ambassador Henry P. Fletcher, who will accompany Mr. Hoover in the capacity of a special representative of the State Department, arrived in San Pedro tonight, and will spend the night aboard the battleship California, joining the party tomorrow upon its arrival there.

The definite itinerary for the trip will not be completed until after Mr. Hoover has conferred aboard the ship with Ambassador Fletcher.

First Talk at Corinto

Under the present plans, however, the first stop will be made at Corinto, where the President-elect will make his first official explanation of the purpose of his visit to the Latin-American republics.

Leaving that port, he will journey down the coast to Balboa, where a brief stop will be made for him to inspect the Panama Canal, and thence he will move down to the southern territories to visit most of the countries there.

On the east coast of South America on the homecoming trip, Mr. Hoover's party will board the battleship Utah and be brought to Havana, journeying from Cuba either to Key West or Miami, Fla., and probably remaining in that State until immediately before the date of his inauguration on March 4.

There has been little thought thus far given to Cabinet selections.

PASTOR'S DAUGHTER DISAPPEARS AGAIN

Gene Bryan, 15, of Takoma Park, Reported to Be Garbed as Boy.

AID OF POLICE IS SOUGHT

Somewhere in the city a 15-year-old girl student of Business High School—the daughter of the pastor of the Takoma Park Seventh Day Adventists' Church—is masquerading as a boy in her second recent runaway from home. The girl is Gene Bryan, the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. B. Franklin Bryan, 254 Carroll street, Takoma Park, who yesterday appealed for police assistance in locating her.

The Rev. Mr. Bryan and his wife were reluctant to discuss the matter last night, but it was learned from the police that the girl had been seen Saturday night collegially dressed in male attire.

Gene is about five feet four inches tall, weighs about 140 pounds, and has blue eyes and brown bobbed hair. When she left her home, she was dressed in a light gray spring coat, a butterfly skirt, tan hose and black slippers.

Her father admitted last night that reports had come to him that she had been seen dressed as a boy Saturday, but he said that he believed it probable that she may be visiting friends. Not so long ago, he said, she was away from her home for awhile, without notifying her family of her whereabouts, but had returned safely.

The parents' appeal was made to the Women's Bureau of the Washington Police Department, which broadcast a description of Gene to the various precincts.

A policewoman was especially assigned to the case and although she visited numerous places last night where young people are known to congregate, no further clue to her whereabouts had been unearthed at a late hour last night.

No report of the girl's disappearance has been made to the Maryland State Police or the police of the town of Takoma Park, Md. The justice of the peace there last night said that he had heard nothing of her whereabouts. Members of the Takoma police said that no lookout for Gene had been issued by them, and it is believed that the girl is in Washington.

Gene is said to be especially popular among her schoolmates at Business High School, and also a good student. Although her classmates yesterday denied any knowledge as to where she has gone, some of them ventured the opinion that she was on a mischievous prank with some friends.

Some of them expressed a desire to see Gene dressed as a boy, and declared that if the police are searching for her masqueraded as a boy, they should look for "a real poly-poly one."

Woman Married to Six Men at One Ceremony

Warsaw, Poland, Nov. 18 (United Press).—Victoria Kosmowska claimed the world's record for modern polygamy tonight after having lined up six prospective husbands and being married to all of them at once.

Because of different religious beliefs on the part of some of the six husbands, difficulties in the way of the ceremony were solved by incorporating the best parts of the marriage rites of the Catholic, Jewish, Protestant, Mohammedan and Reformed Polish churches in the ceremony.

After the ceremony had been performed, Victoria found that she had overlooked one prospect. Not at all discouraged, she started out to become married to him, too, but while she was taking out the seventh marriage license police found out about her adventure. They arrested her on charges of polygamy.

Sanitarium's Head Wounds Attorney

Monroe, La., Doctor Said to Have Objected to Court- ing of a Nurse.

Monroe, La., Nov. 18 (A.P.).—Dr. C. H. Mosely, president and general manager of the Riverside Sanitarium here, shot and seriously wounded John E. Johnson, an attorney, at the institution today, after the physician's office and voluntarily surrendered.

He is being held, pending investigation of the affair and outcome of Johnson's wounds.

The attorney was shot twice, one bullet entering the side and the other penetrating the spinal column and causing paralysis from the waist down. The physician was said to have objected to attentions paid one of the nurses at the sanitarium by the attorney, who is not married.

STEWART VERDICT DECISION UP TODAY

Action on Directed Acquittal Motion Expected as Case Enters Second Week.

LEGAL LIABILITY DENIED

(Associated Press.)

With a ruling pending on a motion for a directed verdict of not guilty, the trial of Robert W. Stewart on charges of perjury arising from testimony given before the Senate Teapot Dome committee today will enter its second week.

The motion was entered Friday by Frank J. Hogan, chief of counsel for Stewart, who is chairman of the board of directors of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana. Hogan argued that the Senate committee was not a "competent tribunal," that no evidence to support allegations of perjury had been brought out by the Government, and that Stewart could not be held legally liable for perjury since he corrected in April erroneous statements made in February at what was in effect a continuation of the same hearing.

United States Attorney Leo A. Rover, replying for the Government, upheld the regularity of the committee meetings and challenged the precedents cited by the defense in support of its contention that Stewart had absolved himself of the perjury charges at his second appearance before the committee.

Asked by Justice Bailey if any harm had been done by Stewart's alleged false answers, Rover declared that the Senate committee had been "thwarted and frustrated" for a period of two months in its efforts to disclose the distribution of the Liberty bond oil profits of the Continental Trading Co., Ltd., of Canada.

The indictment charged that Stewart committed perjury by denying that he knew anything of the distribution of these bonds and that he received any of the bonds himself.

At his second appearance before the Senate committee, Stewart testified that he had received Liberty bonds from the president of the Continental Trading Co. to the value of $750,000.

Mme. Inouye, Vestris Victim, Quits Capital

Mme. Teruko Inouye, widow of Maj. Inouye, recently appointed Japanese consul in the Argentine, and who was lost in the sinking of the Lamport & Holt liner Vestris, left Washington at 1:05 yesterday afternoon for New York. Her ultimate destination was not made public.

The survivor of the Barbados-bound steamship which foundered and sank off the Virginia Cape Monday, was rescued by the United States battleship Wyoming after she had seen her husband die in her arms in the stormy seas which raged throughout the disaster.

Landed at Norfolk, she left that city Saturday for Washington by boat. She refused to talk to newspaper men before leaving the Virginia city.

Wales, Delayed by Auto Breakdown, at Arussia

Nairobi, British East Africa, Nov. 18 (A.P.).—The Prince of Wales and his party, who have had exceptionally good luck on their hunting expedition, arrived at Arussia Friday, after a delay at Longido due to a breakdown of their motor car.

At Mossi the prince witnessed a big native dance.

Joseph Kurea, a Jugo-Slav and the mother of four children, strangled a little girl with a bootlace. She had lured the child to steal money from her father's safe and apparently feared the little girl would betray her.

Both women are in prison in Paris, calmly confident that they will be released by the bachelor president.

Policeman's Shot Hits Man Instead of Dog

Brooklyn, N. Y., Nov. 18 (U.P.).—John J. White, 63, one of the crowd who cheered Patrolman Cornelius Maher when he opened fire on a small tan mongrel dog that snapped at him, is recovering in Kings County Hospital.

The patrolman fired five shots, one of them taking effect in White's leg. The dog got away.

Professor-Elevator Boy Dies in Fall Down Shaft

Chicago, Nov. 18.—Daniel J. Ellingsen, 40 years old, a professor at Luther College, Decorah, Iowa, resigned recently and came to Chicago, seeking some employment that would enable him to complete his education at one of the universities here.

He accepted a job as elevator operator at a hotel now under construction. This morning he went to work, unaware that artisans had been employed on his elevator. He opened the door to the shaft and stepped down 30 feet, fracturing his skull and dying an hour later at a hospital.

DORRANTS CANADA
CONTROL OF LIQUOR

Arrests, Accidents and Poverty Increasing There, He Tells W. C. T. U.

SPEAKS AT CONVENTION

Boston, Nov. 18 (A.P.).—Dr. James M. Doran, United States Commissioner of Prohibition, speaking at today's session of the national W. C. T. U. convention here, said the Canadian system of government control of the liquor traffic had proved unsuccessful.

"Canada is distributing alcoholic beverages freely and all of Canada shows the effects that one would expect would follow the wide distribution of alcoholic liquor," Dr. Doran said.

"Canada has an increase of arrests, an increase of accidents, and increase of poverty.

"It is absolutely impossible to deal with alcohol on any other basis than complete prohibition of the traffic; our government deals with the problem in the only logical and consistent manner."

He said that Great Britain, because of its home consumption of alcohol, is suffering from a severe economic situation which it views "with grave concern."

"I saw more drunkenness and evidence of drink in four days in London than I have seen in America in the last eight years," he said. "Remember that in England they have the 'old public house' still running open to the public, seaward on the floor and its long lines of drinking men and women."

"They are bleary-eyed and have that look on their faces that almost shakes one's soul. Any one who takes one square look at London will no longer be an apologist for conditions in this country. And to say that conditions under prohibition are worse in this country than prior to prohibition is perfect nonsense."

Dr. Doran described Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, Assistant United States Attorney General, as "one of the most wonderful women who ever lived." He emphasized the need for cooperation of city and town police with the Federal authorities.

"Up to a point," he said, "the prohibitionists have been doing a splendid job. But a vigorous State's attorney disclosed the rotten condition, the local politicians' vice and liquor ring, and conditions there are better."

Two Accused of Fleeing Teachers of $174,000

Chicago, Nov. 18 (A.P.).—Edward J. Wentzel, head of a brokerage firm, and an employee, C. C. Ritchey, have been held for the grand jury in bonds totaling $174,000 on charges of conspiracy and operating a confidence game, preferred by a group of school teachers.

Attorneys said their clients lost $175,000 through Wentzel's and Ritchey's activities. The brokers canvassed school buildings, soliciting teachers to invest in bonds, and then fled with the money.

Later, witnesses testified, the brokers told the teachers their bonds had been recalled and gave them practically worthless paper in exchange.

Brush Blaze Destroys Dwellings in California

Los Angeles, Nov. 18 (A.P.).—A water-logged brush fire in Los Flores and Tuna Canyons, sixteen miles north of here, destroyed more than a dozen homes and cabins late last night. Other residents in the thickly settled resort center up coast from Santa Monica labored to remove small furnishings from their abodes in the path of the flames.

Driven by a stiff wind, the blaze rapidly spread from the point three miles from the sea, where it started, and was kept from reaching the mouth of Los Flores Canyon, the flames leaped Roosevelt highway and leveled four houses on Oceanview road.

LAUDS DRY LAW

LONDON SEES HOPE OF U. S. MAY PACT

Agreement Under Hoover Is Expected After Ill-Feeling on Matter Dies Out

HOUGHTON'S AID SOUGHT

(United Press.)

London, Nov. 18.—The British press predicted today the speedy clarification of differences with the United States over the abandoned Anglo-French naval accord and the possibility of definite development toward agreement on naval limitations after the inauguration of Herbert Hoover.

Looking forward to the return of Sir Austen Chamberlain, foreign secretary, and American Ambassador Houghton on November 20, a section of the British press sees hope that the United States will be more forthcoming in the Anglo-French naval accord will be dispelled immediately.

Door Not Closed

The latest interpretation of President Coolidge's Armistice Day speech, which was regarded as severe toward Great Britain's alleged failure to advance reasonable naval limitation proposals, by no means closed the door to the further naval discussions, according to Washington papers.

On the other hand, the correspondents believe, the clarification of this situation will open the door to a new angle.

It is believed generally that if Ambassador Houghton had been taken into the confidence of the Government during the early stages of the Anglo-French accord negotiations, his report to the United States would have shown the impossibility of approval of the pact. Under such conditions the negotiations would have ceased immediately.

Good Reaction Seen.

The present optimistic attitude in Britain is due to the apparent sentiment favoring the United States, according to Viscount Cecil's recent suggestion for formulation of a bilateral Anglo-American naval limitation agreement.

Since the path of the difference of opinion between London and Washington on the classification of naval armaments has been limited, an agreement would go a long way toward elimination of obstacles in the path of a universal disarmament pact.

It is believed possible that the British suggestion will be along this line, but it is anticipated that no concrete action will be taken until after the inauguration of Herbert Hoover.

STORM HITS FRANCE; DEATH TOLL MOUNTS

Many Ships Sunk and Homes Ripped From Foundations by the Gale.

60 ARE REPORTED DEAD

Paris, Nov. 18 (United Press).—The toll of a four-day storm, which took the lives of more than 60 persons in England and Europe, lashed the coast of France today, battering sea and land communications and wrecking a number of buildings in its dying tremors.

The wind was of such intensity that ships which ordinarily make as high as 18 knots an hour were reduced to less than one-third that speed as they attempted to make Cherbourg Harbor. Many of the vessels which filled the harbor today were damaged.

Report of additional deaths in the storm continued to pour in today, making totals of at least 19 in France, 35 in England, 12 off the coast of Holland and many others in isolated towns.

A belated dispatch from Amsterdam told of the death of a sea captain, his wife and their ten children. All were drowned when their small sailing vessel, Noorderster, was sunk in the storm off Texel Island.

Vessels arriving at Dutch ports reported terrific gales and high seas which struck terror to the hearts of passengers and sailors, but no other disasters were reported.

Two Sailors Washed Away

Two sailors in the naval encampment at Pezang, France, on the English Channel, were washed from their boat and carried out to sea at the height of the storm today. Both were drowned.

At Bethune two workmen repairing a wire line were struck by lightning and killed. At Hazebrouck three houses were washed away by the rain. Hazebrouck is in the department of Nord.

Wireless messages received at Dunkerque indicated that two schooners had been abandoned by their crews. One vessel was at Sables d'Olonne, on the Bay of Biscay, and the other was wrecked apparently in the same vicinity.

The crews of both vessels were saved, the reports said.

Five men drowned in a terrific gale which sank a fishing boat off the coast of Spain, dispatches from Avila, Spain, said.

Other dispatches reported high rivers in France, with damage of several million francs in the Loire River Valley, where floods wrecked houses at Avignon and Grenoble.

It was feared that the total of deaths would be increased as delayed reports reached Paris.

British Death Toll Is 35

London, Nov. 18 (United Press).—The death toll in last week-end's storm on the British coast was placed at 35 tonight due to loss of the steamer Eltham, and the schooner Mary Ann, both of which were wrecked Saturday.

Exhaustive search for lifeboats from the two ships failed to account for any except one member of the crew of the Mary Ann. Altogether, there were sixteen men on the two ships. Officials expressed the belief it was impossible that any others escaped alive from the two vessels.

Hamburg Germany Nov. 18 (A.P.).—Delayed reports which reached Hamburg today over crippled communications lines indicated that the casualties and havoc wrought by yesterday's devastating hurricane which swept over northwestern Germany would be much greater than at first supposed. Before blowing itself out the wind attained a velocity of 78 miles an hour, and a 3-foot rise in the tide along the North Sea coast.

Dead Girl Believed Gangsters' Victim

Body Found at Norristown, Where That of Mrs. Zeracky Was Left.

Norristown, Pa., Nov. 18 (U.P.).—The body of a pretty girl, a pistol bullet through her head, was found by a farm hand in a cornfield near here today, almost over the spot where three weeks ago the body of Mrs. Helen Zeracky, of New Brunswick, N. J., was found after she had been "taken for a ride."

It is believed here that the latest victim also had been shot by gunmen because she knew too much regarding some ramification of the bootleg racket.

The girl found today was from 23 to 24 years old, brown eyes and with brown hair, 5 feet 3 inches tall. She wore a blue coat over a dark blue dress, a blue hat, black slippers and light silk stockings. Police are certain she was shot somewhere else and taken to the cornfield.

Victory for Roosevelt Conceded by Olinger

New York, Nov. 18 (A.P.).—Albion Olinger, Republican candidate for governor, today conceded his defeat and sent a telegram to Franklin D. Roosevelt at Warm Springs, Ga., his successful opponent, congratulating him on his victory in the election.

Lady Health Passenger In New Jersey Flight

Newark, N. J., Nov. 18 (U.P.).—Lady Health, English aviatrix, took off from Newark for Philadelphia today as a passenger in a plane piloted by Dean Lamb, of New York.

Lady Health is scheduled to make a speech in Philadelphia Monday.

Gen. Allen Urges More Clothing for Soldiers

Legislators of New England See Tariff as Corollary of Aid to Farmers.

HOOVER'S TRIP AFFECTED

By CARLISLE BARGERO.

With the increasing arrivals of senators and members of the House, and their comments, it begins to look very much as if only considerable pressure from President-elect Hoover will prevent an extra session of Congress directly after the forthcoming one.

New England tariff revisionists are impatient for the upward revision that was promised during the campaign, so they are joining with the Middle Western group in the stand that farm relief cannot be passed at the extra session. Mr. Hoover is committed to the call of an extra session if farm relief is enacted, and if the extra session is held it is accepted as a foregone conclusion that the tariff will be taken up.

Just as Mr. Hoover's attitude in the matter is unknown, he is generally believed to be hopeful that Senator McNary, of Oregon, will be successful in passing a farm relief bill at the short session, but whether he feels strongly enough about it to exert pressure is another matter.

He is represented in some quarters as really not caring much whether an extra session is forced on him or not, but a stronger representation is that C. B. Austin, of Iowa, will be a factor in his South American good-will tour and head almost immediately into a problem that might disturb South American trade.

Palo Alto have sought to stress the idea that he is making his tour in the interest of good will and not as a trade mission, but good trade relations are an inevitable corollary of good will.

Tariff Threatens Good Will.

Upward revision of the tariff, undertaken immediately after his inauguration, would threaten the good will that he is seeking to establish.

On the other hand, an upward revision of the tariff must come. It was promised and received a strong endorsement from the protectionist attitude of the Democrats.

The question is whether an extra session will be held to consider the revision of the tariff, or if it is to be deferred, with the possible harm that might come from intervening suspense.

The latter voices to the growing cry for an extra session. Senator Gillette and Representative Treadway of Massachusetts, New England industries, the New York and New Jersey, they contend, Representative Dickinson, of Iowa, one of the guiding influences behind the McNary-Haugen bill, also are in favor of an extra session.

He looks upon tariff revision as a component part of the farm relief program.

Tariff Held Farm Aid Part.

Apparently he is not willing to accept the abridged McNary-Haugen bill at the regular short session. He wants the tariff revision accomplished. The indications are that the other Middle Western McNary-Haugenites are going to insist on this accomplishment.

It looks, in fact, as if Senator McNary will be all alone in his efforts to get the farm relief bill enacted at this session.

Aside from the attitude of the Middle Western Republicans and the New Englanders, the Democrats are more than likely to take a stand tending to force an extra session. The equalization bill, introduced by McNary, and in their Houston platform and Gov. Smith has called upon them to forsake that platform.

It is difficult to be seen whether they will agree to do this when they all get here. Senator Pat Harrison is in favor of opposing the equalization bill and fighting for it just as if the presidential campaign were still on. If the Democrats do not do this, it will be, in a rather strong way, a denial of Gov. Smith's leadership.

On the other hand, if the tariff will be rather difficult for some of the Democrats to get up any enthusiasm for the fee now.

Viscountess Grey Dies Unexpectedly

Was Wife of Former British Secretary for Foreign Affairs.

London, Nov. 19 (Monday) (A.P.).—The Daily Mail today announces the death of Viscountess Pamela Grey after a sudden illness at her home at Windsor Manor, Salisbury. Her husband, the former secretary for foreign affairs, was at his Palladian estate and was hurried to the scene.

The viscountess, who was the daughter of the late Percy Wyndham, was 57 years old. She first was married to Lord Grey, who died in 1920. They had three sons and a daughter.

In 1922 she was married to Viscount Grey, who had been a widower for sixteen years. She was the author of several books and was a fellow of the Royal Society of Literature.

JUNIOR REPORTERS' STAFF IS PLANNED

Junior Reporter will know he or she has been chosen for the staff of the Post by the member in choosing the "Big News" of each week for an essay.

This is the second week of the contest. The members of the staff of the Post will be eligible for the two prizes of $5, one for grade and one for high school pupils. The other for high school students. These essays must be no more than 250 words in length, written on one side of the paper only and addressed to the "Big News" contest editor.

COLUMBIA BAPTIST SESSIONS TO START

First Meeting Will Be Held at Metropolitan Church at 7:45 Tonight.

WILL CONTINUE 4 DAYS

The first annual meeting of the Columbia Association of Baptist Churches, an organization with a total membership of nearly 15,000, and property valuation of about $3,000,000, will open tonight, the beginning of a four-day program.

Sessions will be held at the Metropolitan Baptist Church, at Sixth and C streets northeast, of which the Rev. John C. Wallace is pastor. Officers are Edward H. DeGroot, Jr., moderator; the Rev. Samuel J. Porter, vice moderator; S. G. Nottingham, clerk.

The first session will open at 7:45 o'clock with an invocation by the Rev. Wallace. The annual sermon will be preached by the Rev. E. E. Richardson, and the Rev. E. H. DeGroot will deliver the benediction.

Tomorrow's meeting will be divided into three sessions—morning, afternoon and evening. In the morning the Rev. S. J. Porter will deliver a Thanksgiving sermon. There will be a selection of officers, and a reception for visitors. The morning session will be at 10 o'clock.

Wednesday afternoon, beginning at 2 o'clock, there will be reports of the various committees, and the appointment of three new committees.

The Rev. C. Wallace of Pittsburg, at 8:30 p. m. will deliver an address, "Ignorance of the Wise."

Mrs. W. J. Cox, president of Woman's Missionary Union of the Southern Baptist Convention, will on Wednesday morning, at 10:30 o'clock, deliver an address, "The Christian's Responsibility."

A. H. Curtis, of South Africa, Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock the Rev. Z. B. Phillips will speak, and the Rev. H. B. Bunney will deliver the benediction.

The program Thursday will begin at 10 o'clock and will be followed by an afternoon and evening program. Committee reports will be heard in the morning. Special musical numbers and other features at the afternoon and evening sessions.

WALKER ACTION DUE IN ROTHSTEIN CASE

George McManus, gambler, under the name of George Richards.

3. That one or two others may have been in that room, although the only hotel employee who saw a second man there he could not identify him.

4. That September 8, nearly two months before the shooting, Rothstein lost nearly $300,000 in a stud poker game, for failure to pay which he was threatened with punishment.

5. That George McManus summoned Rothstein to room 349 on the night of the shooting.

6. That George McManus apparently has disappeared.

Among the leading allegations of the detectives might be listed the following:

1. The production, one by one, of all but one of the eight men who played the stud poker game, with a resultant confirmation of Rothstein's losses and failure to pay.

2. The discovery of a "Tough Willie" McCabe, after three weeks of hide-and-seek, and his immediate release, despite apparent discrepancies in his story.

3. The tracing of the revolver almost to the man who had it last.

4. The determination of the fact that Rothstein, whose money found its way into all sorts of Broadway rackets, had incurred many enemies and more than once had been threatened with death before.

5. The realization that George McManus has no inclination to answer police inquiries to appear at police headquarters to "tell all."

It is Walker's conclusion that the prolongation of the mystery is not as much due to lack of energy on the part of the detectives as it is to the breakdown of their methods.

And kind of underworld, he believes, has supplanted the dynasty of the past. It is an underworld presided over by shrewd brains, harder men. It is characterized by its hired killers, lone wolves, who work alone and work quietly, and subtle racketeers. It is an underworld financed by millions from the drug and night club rackets.

AMERICA'S POLICY.

The American people have overwhelmingly approved President Coolidge's Armistice Day address, in which he set forth American policy. His exposure of the tortuous conduct of certain European governments in trying to overreach the United States has struck home. The people of Great Britain are much more severe in their criticism of their government's blundering than Mr. Coolidge has been. It is now plain to France, Germany and Great Britain that they have nothing to gain by concocting schemes for inducing the United States to finance their military and naval expansion. Mr. Coolidge has stated that the American people do not intend to finance another war. They expect the war debts to be paid. They ask the great powers to cooperate in good faith for the limitation of armaments.

American policy as outlined by President Coolidge is not open to criticism by any American or foreigner who is devoted to world peace. It is covered by three words—preparation, limitation and renunciation. By preparation is meant the provision of suitable defense, so that, whether the nations keep the faith or not, the United States will be safe. By faithfully observed, limiting the world's great navies and eliminating competitive limitation is meant a genuine agreement, building. By renunciation is meant the ratification of the Kellogg treaty and its faithful observance by all nations.

If all nations will adopt the policy which the United States has adopted there will be peace, relief from armament burdens and general security based upon the ability of each nation to defend itself.

The world's peoples support this policy. Some of the chief governments have betrayed their own peoples by refusing to put this policy into effect. Men who temporarily direct the policies of their governments have entered into agreements, partly secret, having for their object the supremacy of the British navy and the French army, in absolute disregard of any honest rule of limitation of armaments. These agreements having been exposed and denounced by the people of Great Britain, the British government drops them, or tries to do so; but it appears that the French government holds Britain to its agreement in respect to the increase of French military power.

British public opinion greatly regrets the impairment of confidence that now marks the relations between Britain and the United States. The reasons for this loss of confidence are clear. They are caused by the failure of British authorities to keep good faith with the United States. When it was agreed in Washington in 1922 that the spirit of the arms limitation treaty contemplated parity of naval strength as between the United States and Great Britain it was not dreamed by Americans that Great Britain would immediately begin to build large cruisers, of battleship speed and effectiveness, and thus reestablish British sea supremacy. President Coolidge was faced with the alternative of building up the American fleet or inviting the sea powers to make genuine limitation effective. He chose the latter alternative and called the Geneva conference. There his proposal to restore British-American naval parity was rejected. Later the Franco-British accord was reached, having for its object the permanent inferiority of the United States Navy as compared with the British navy.

It is little wonder that President Coolidge now makes American policy clear. He proposes that the United States shall provide such naval defense as will make its rights and commerce secure, whether the world is at war or at peace; that the nations shall renounce war; and that the great powers shall agree to genuine and equitable limitation of naval armaments.

The promotion of world peace depends upon the cooperation of foreign governments in this equitable policy. They can fail to pay their debts, if they wish, but Mr. Coolidge suggests that the United States can afford to lose these debts better than the debtors can afford not to pay them. They can evade limitation agreements, if they wish, but Mr. Coolidge reminds them that the United States is not suggesting limitation because of any lack of ability to outbuild all other powers. They can break faith after ratifying the Kellogg treaty, if they wish, but if they count the cost they will not do so.

Whatever course may be taken by the directors of foreign governments, it is evident that the peoples of the world stand behind the policy outlined by Mr. Coolidge. The United States has but one duty to perform. That duty is to provide for suitable defense, to ratify the Kellogg treaty, and to make sure that any further overtures for limitation of armaments shall be made in good faith.

"RESPONSIBLE" BIDDERS.

The Comptroller General's decision that the Treasury Department may reject the lowest bid for erecting a structure in the $50,000,000 Federal building program if, judged by certain rules that he sets down, it does not appear that the bidder is responsible, is of the utmost importance. Heretofore all departments of the Government have had to accept the lowest responsible bid for goods or services, and there has been no definition of the word "responsible." The classic example of what may transpire under such an arrangement is provided by the District 1927 automobile license incident. All of the bids received except one specified a price of approximately 14 cents a pair. A Chicago firm, however, bid 11.5 cents, and although it was apparent that the bid was too low to make a profit possible, the bidder had induced a member of Congress to testify that he was responsible, and the District had to give him the order. He failed to make good his contract, and it was late spring before the last of the 1927 tags were distributed.

The Comptroller General now says that the Treasury may require each bidder to make a showing in detail as to his business and technical organization available for the contract work, as to his ability to finance so much of the work as under the terms of the contract he would be required to finance, and as to each building constructed by the bidder during a specified period. The Treasury also would appear justified, he says, in rejecting the bid of any bidder not showing such a business and technical organization or nucleus thereof available for the contract work, or such financial ability to finance so much of the work as the contractor would be required to finance, or such building experience as reasonably to justify the conclusion that the requirements of the Government in this instance could not safely be entrusted to such a bidder.

The decision marks an important incident in the program of adopting the common sense principles of proper business management to the Government. It will assist materially in making possible a building program satisfactory both to the Government and the contracting industry. It will be reflected in improved efficiency in every department and activity of the Government, both locally and throughout the country.

TEARING UP STREETS.

Having reached the stage where newly laid pavement is torn up within twelve hours after it has been opened to traffic, the District government has finally taken steps to "coordinate" itself, so that permits to cut into sidewalks and pavements shall have some relation to the public convenience. The tearing up of pavements, without regard to street repair work newly completed, has been a cause of complaint in this city for many years. Coordination should have been effected long ago; but public convenience was the last consideration.

The District government should compel utilities companies, plumbers, and builders to take note of street repair plans and govern their own work accordingly. By grouping private and semiprivate excavations the streets can be kept free for considerable periods for traffic, whereas under the present anarchy the city's traffic is held up while gas and water mains, plumbing repairs and building extensions are permitted to block the streets at the whim of private parties.

It is the duty of the District government to protect the public first. Public utility aggressions against public traffic and safety have reached an intolerable point. These operations should be grouped so that during a part of the time, at least, the public will have access to its streets.

JOHN EARLY THE LEPER.

The name of John Early will go down in history as another of those men who, either voluntarily or unwillingly, have aided materially in the advancement of medical science. It was something like fifteen years ago that the people of Washington were startled by the announcement that a leper, John Early, was at large in the city. At that time there was no law authorizing the Public Health Service to take over the care of lepers. Early was confined in a small isolated building on the Eastern Branch, from which he subsequently escaped. In 1917 Congress conferred upon the Public Health Service the control of persons known to be afflicted with the disease, and for two years that service, after Early had been apprehended, held him in confinement at the quarantine station at Port Townsend. Later he became a patient in the National Leper Home at Carville, La., where he has been under treatment ever since except when he surreptitiously left the home and traveled where he chose. It was during one of these periodical absences that he last visited Washington and remained some time in his "home," on the Eastern Branch. But he was taken back to Louisiana in spite of the appeals of his fellow citizens of North Carolina that he be allowed to remain on his own farm.

The wisdom of the law officers who were compelled to deny the appeal now becomes manifest, for the service is able to announce that through the constant application of chemotherapy internally and externally Early is today absolutely free of the disease. Nor is that all. The Public Health Service in a bulletin just issued says that during the last sixteen months 24 patients have been discharged as recovered or "arrested" from the National Leper Home, and during the past year "microscopic tests of Early's blood and tissues have been negative for the leprosy bacillus."

In reporting the recovery and discharge from the home of this most noted of all lepers, Surgeon General Cummings says:

"It is not unlikely that John Early contributed not inconsiderably to the creation of public sentiment that was necessary to pass the law of February 3, 1917, enabling the Public Health Service to take over the care of lepers. His eccentricities have at least served to keep the public apprised of the fact that there is a leprosy problem in the United States that requires money and other means to solve, and for this and other reasons the Public Health Service is glad to bestow its benediction as John Early with two other healed patients depart from the National Leper Home."

THE GASOLINE TAX.

The extent to which the automobile, the truck and the tractor have conquered America is admirably shown in the recent report on gasoline sales and gasoline taxes published by the Bureau of Public Roads of the Department of Agriculture. In 46 States and the District of Columbia a total of 4,652,393,535 gallons of gasoline was sold from January 1 to June 30 of the present year, showing an increase of nearly 700,000,000 gallons over the corresponding period of 1927. The tax on these huge sales produced a revenue of $140,633,398, this amount being a gain of more than $29,000,000 over the first six months of last year.

The publication of these figures renders a public service, inasmuch as it tends to reconcile motorists and others concerned to a tax under which they are sometimes inclined to chafe, for it shows that the great bulk of the fund so realized has been spent to insure their safety, their comfort and their convenience. No smaller amount of the tax proceeds than $95,849,113 was allocated to construction and maintenance of State roads, $29,557,416 to local roads, and $5,630,668 to interest and premium payments on both State and country roads.

Every one who pays a tax on his purchase of gasoline must experience a feeling of satisfaction in the thought that he is contributing his own individual share, be it much or little, to the construction and repair of a network of good roads, especially as such roads are a necessity to the traffic which modern methods of locomotion and transportation have brought in their wake.

The air may yet beat out both the road and the ocean as a highway for pleasure travel and commercial transportation; but, in view of the figures given above, it would seem that the day when that contingency will have arrived belongs to a future that is yet far distant.

DANGEROUS SIGNALS.

For many months the American Engineering Council has been studying the traffic problem, surveying conditions in more than 100 cities in 35 States, having a total population in excess of 33,000,000. Following the survey the council issued a report having to do with unified practice in traffic control, and in the report it made the assertion that some cities are making fundamental mistakes in installing street traffic signs, signals and markings by placing traffic control devices without adequate study of the conditions they are calculated to improve.

If the reports of police authorities who have examined the new installation of traffic lights in Rhode Island avenue are to be believed, the local traffic department has made just such a mistake. Three responsible officials of the Police Department have characterized the installation as "unsatisfactory, confusing and dangerous." At Q, R, S and T streets, the intersection with Rhode Island avenue is at such a sharp angle that every motorist sees simultaneously two opposing signals, and chooses the one he wants to obey. Thus the way is open for fatal accidents. The Police Department, through Maj. Hesse, recommends that the signals be removed and that a system of one-way streets be substituted.

If the lights are confusing and dangerous they should be taken down forthwith.

The Rhode Island avenue signals, instead of providing protection to motorists, seem to be so located as to lead the unwary directly into the path of danger.

GRAVELLY POINT.

Anthony Fokker, airplane designer and manufacturer, believes that Gravelly Point is wholly suitable for a great commercial airport. He hopes that Washington will lose no time in constructing an airport that will be a model for the world. Speaking before the weekly forum luncheon at the City Club last week, he detailed what facilities, in his opinion, a modern airport should offer. It is essential, he said, that there be runways so constructed that aircraft can land from every direction, and that there be separate runways for landing and taking off. The modern airport should be used as a terminal, with joy-riding and sight-seeing flights prohibited therefrom, and with servicing and repairing done at other fields. William P. MacCracken, Jr., Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Aviation, who also addressed the meeting, insisted that an airport for Washington is not only the concern of Congress and the District government, but of Capital business men as well.

The matter of developing Gravelly Point into a first-class airport should be pushed before Congress this winter. Apparently opposition to the selection of this site has largely died out. No other site suggested held the advantages of Gravelly Point; no other could be developed into as fine an airport at the same cost. Development of Gravelly Point, however, will cost several million dollars, and since establishment of an airport will be of benefit to the Federal Government as well as to the District government and local business men, Congress should be glad to contribute an equitable proportion of the cost.

Today planes are flying on regular schedule from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and from the Canadian border to the Gulf. Commercial aviation no longer is a dream, but has become a reality. Everywhere cities are engaged upon airport building projects so that commerce of the air will not be diverted from their doors. Washington will suffer in years to come if the construction of a satisfactory airport is delayed. Every effort should be bent toward getting through the forthcoming Congress legislation necessary to start the development of Gravelly Point.

Stepping Out.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

"Survivors" of the Custer Battle.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In the 52 years since the battle of the Little Big Horn (June 25-26, 1876) there have appeared, I believe, as many as fifteen "survivors" of the massacre on Custer Field. No one acquainted with the details of that battle can give the slightest credence to the statements of any of these men. The facts are as well known as they probably ever will be, and they leave no room for the possibility that any survivor escaped. The story of Curly, the Crow scout, once accepted generally, has been entirely discredited by the testimony of his fellow scouts, both Crows and Arikaras.

On the other part of the field—that is, on Reno Hill, where the commands of Reno and Benteen held out until the arrival of Terry and Gibbon—there were more than 300 survivors. Some of them—probably fifteen or sixteen—are still living. At the fiftieth anniversary of the battle, in June, two years ago, I talked with several. The most noted among them is Brig. Gen. Edward S. Godfrey (retired), then a lieutenant in command of K Troop in Benteen's Battalion. By his numerous contributions to the subject he has done more than any other man, living or dead, to give us an exact understanding of that tragic encounter.

These men are, of course, "survivors" of the Custer battle, but they are not survivors of the battle on Custer Field. Only one of them, a private, suffering from an unfortunate delusion, makes any pretense of having been on Custer Field during the battle. Any other person now or in earlier times professing to have survived that part of the battle must be put down as an impostor. There was no survivor.

Red Cross Volunteers.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A report has reached me that there is a rumor in circulation in Washington that I receive a salary from the Red Cross. I would be indebted to you if you would kindly publish this letter to refute the statement.

I have been a volunteer in Red Cross service for some 28 years. I have never received any remuneration in any way from the Red Cross. My services are given and I never have received a salary. I have paid all my own expenses in traveling for the Red Cross all over the United States, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, from the Great Lakes to the Gulf. I have always paid my own expenses and I have contributed to all of its appeals to the best of my ability.

In the raising of funds for the new Memorial Building, in addition to our contribution, my mother and I met all the expenses of raising the fund.

I desire to have the false information that has been circulated corrected.

May I take also this opportunity to state that Judge Payne, the chairman of the central committee, not only gives his services but pays all his own expenses. Mr. Bicknell, who is in charge of foreign operations, is also a volunteer. The treasurer of the Red Cross,

A Great Mountain Must Be Built to Lift a Wee Island Above the Sea.

By ROBERT QUILEN

IN warm climates there are many islands that might be called bone piles. If the seas should dry up, these islands would be revealed as the tops of mountains. They are mountains, resting on the floor of the sea, and they are composed of the shell bodies of tiny sea creatures. Millions of years ago there lived in the ooze at the bottom of the sea a great colony of small creatures that could not swim or think or do anything at all but live and die.

They died where they lived and their bodies merged and formed a carpet on the floor of the sea.

The second generation, being incapable of thought or plan, made no effort to move away and formed a second carpet on the level of the first. Because it knew no better and could do no better, it lived and died in the same spot.

But it lived on a higher plane; note that. It began to build where the former generation left off. And when it had finished life and died, there was a second layer on the floor of the sea.

These creatures had no plan or design. They did not think of the future, or build for the glory and advancement of their race. They simply followed the course of least resistance and did the thing they were destined to do—died it blindly and stupidly.

But the result was as good as though they had made intelligent plans for the advancement of their kind.

Each generation brought the race to a higher level. Each generation climbed nearer to the light. Each served as a stepping stone to elevate the one that followed.

And so through thousands and millions of years these wee, insignificant things fulfilled their destiny without knowing what they were doing, and at last an island was thrust above the level of the sea into the sunlight.

And on the island a new and higher form of life developed. Trees and flowers grew; birds and four-footed creatures appeared; man came and built a temple and a school and began to plow and harvest grain.

A beginning in the slime of the sea bed; an aimless and unwitting climb as one generation built upon another and thus reached higher and higher, forever nearer the light and the source of light.

There you have the story of all things—the story of mankind. But how many generations have yet to build before the light is reached, nobody knows.

But this much any observing man can know. The great and the lowly of each generation, whether selfish or selfless, whether full of zeal or placid in contentment, eventually form a new and higher level of the foundation on which others will build as the race climbs nearer and nearer to the light.

(Copyright, 1928.)

myself as secretary, and the counselor, are all volunteers. The members of the central committee, from all parts of the country, not only volunteer their services but pay their own expenses in attending meetings. This amounts to some hundreds of dollars annually for the members who come from distant points of the country, such as the Pacific Coast.

I think in justice to the officers of the organization these facts should be made known.

The officers of the chapter are all volunteers, and 822 volunteers in the chapter gave over 34,000 hours of volunteer service during last year.

I would appreciate the publication of this letter for the sake of justice.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I heartily concur in what your correspondent, Mr. Meredith, had to say about our excessive gushing over the scenic beauties of Great Falls. It is my belief that at least two-thirds of the residents of Washington have never paid a visit to the falls. After all, what we call rustic or scenic beauty is attractive to comparatively few.

FOLK IN MISSISSIPPI LET GOV. SMITH REST

Comes and Goes Without Molestation or Craning of Necks.

DRIVES TO BILOXI CHURCH

Edgewater Gulf Hotel, Miss., Nov. 18 (A.P.)—Alfred E. Smith settled down today to the life of a winter vacationist, determined to rebuild his campaign-worn body.

Residents along the gulf have taken him at his word that he wished to be let alone. They are leaving him in peace. Even the hotel guests, after the first blush of his arrival, have treated him as an ordinary guest.

There no longer is a craning of necks when he appears in the dining room or lobby, and he goes and comes without molestation.

He adhered to his steadfast custom of attending Sunday church services by driving 5 miles to the old town of Biloxi for the 11 o'clock service at the Church of Nativity.

There he was met at the curb by the Rev. Peter Keenan, who escorted him through the small crowd gathered in front of the church to a front pew.

After the service the minister addressed the congregation, saying he wished to say a word of welcome to the "big and good hearted man who is with us today."

"This is a man," he added, as he smiled on the governor, "who in defeat has been victorious. Alfred E. Smith has done more for Americanism and Catholicism than any other man in American history. He has broken down prejudice and intolerance."

Coming down the aisle, Gov. Smith turned from side to side shaking hands with men, women and children. He drove back to the Edgewater Gulf Hotel, where he remained at ease for the remainder of the day with the exception of a short round of golf.

The church party included John J. Raabok, John L. Gilchrist, Michael Meenan and James Riordan. New York friends of the governor, Senator Harrison, of Mississippi, and others remained at the hotel, while Mayor Kennedy, of Biloxi, escorted them to church.

During his stay Gov. Smith hopes to play golf each day but does not plan any fishing trips or any other outdoor recreation. Near the end of his visit he expects to give a reception for those wishing to meet him.

Two Men Shot Dead Over Moonshine Theft

Paducah, Ky., Nov. 18 (A.P.)—Two negroes were killed by two white men here last night as a result of a quarrel over theft of "moonshine" liquor. The white men were alleged to have been making. Sam Barker died almost instantly and his brother, Jim, lived only a short time after he was taken to the city hospital.

According to police the victims were followed to a small restaurant, where the shooting took place, from an abandoned house where the white men were alleged to have been operating a still. Shortly after the shooting the police arrested Ernest Dean, 35, on a murder charge. In the house in which the quarrel is said to have begun they found a 50-gallon copper still. Tom Lynch was being sought tonight as Dean's accomplice.

This extravagance menaces health

To brush teeth and forget gums, is an extravagance that demands as its price health and its precious gifts, beauty and youth. In this life of ease and luxury, gums are undernourished and under-exercised. And if neglected, they surrender to diseases that sweep the system and often cause loss of teeth.

Be liberal with yourself. Take advantage of the best modern dentistry. See your dentist every six months. Continue to brush your teeth. But also, every morning and night, brush gums vigorously with the dentifrice specifically made for the purpose... Forhan's for the Gums.

When you have used this dentifrice for a few days you'll notice a vast improvement in the way your gums look and feel. In addition, note how effectively and safely Forhan's cleans teeth white and protects them from causes of decay. Get a tube from your druggist and start using it today.

Night of Fire Predicted For Earth in 1932 or '33

Prof. C. P. Olivier Finds Leonids are Back on Old Course, and That World Will Pass Through Meteor-Storm Rivaling Display of November, 1833.

Philadelphia, Nov. 18 (U.P.)—Brilliant streaks in the sky this week that marked the earth's passage through the path of the Leonid meteors indicate that the earth probably will witness a "night of fire" in 1932 or 1933, Prof. Charles P. Olivier said today.

Prof. Olivier observed the meteors this week to see if there was an increase over last year which would indicate that the Leonids were approaching a maximum within five years. He said that his observations had led him to believe that the night of November 12, 1833, would be duplicated. On that night the sky was ablaze with meteors. Many thought the earth was coming to an end. More than 25,000 meteors were seen by a single observer in Europe.

The professor is president of the American Meteor Society and a member of the University of Pennsylvania faculty at the Flower Observatory at Upper Darby.

Data on the meteors collected all over the United States and Canada by Prof. Peter Keenan, who is president of the society, will be sent to the professor to aid in his calculations. He said that the mathematics of the 1832 or 1933 display. That will give scientists the exact data on which to predict approximately how the earth will react to the meteors then.

The meteors, which always appear in the middle of November, ride out of the constellation of Leo—the Lion. They crash into the earth's atmosphere at an estimated speed of 44 miles a second, the professor said.

Because of their speed, the meteors are "burned out" before they could possibly reach the earth, Prof. Olivier explained. He said that once in a while they become fire balls, meteors that reach within 60 to 40 miles of the earth and have the brilliance of a pale moon on a clear summer night.

The others are burned to nothing in the rare gases more than 60 miles above the earth's surface.

"The Leonids have a brother and sister relationship with Tempel's comet," the professor explained. "They probably both had a common parent. They both have a circuit around the sun of 33 years."

Possibility that the Leonids might never again enter the earth's atmosphere in large groups was feared after the planet Jupiter, the sky monarch, "pulled" the meteors out of their course in 1899, the year that the earth would have passed through the thickest portion of the meteors. This year's display indicated that other forces had righted the influences of Jupiter and the Leonids were back in their normal course of 1833.

Clemenceau Marvels At Talking Pictures

Paris, Nov. 18 (U.P.)—Georges Clemenceau, war-time premier of France, is becoming a weekly patron of the movies and today paid his third visit in as many weeks to a motion picture theater to see and hear the only talking motion picture now showing in Paris. Until a month ago, Clemenceau had never seen a motion picture with the single exception of one private showing at his home.

Clemenceau watched the performance in silence and at the end exclaimed: "Marvelous!"

Slayer, Retried, Faces Electric Chair Again

Princeton, Ind., Nov. 18 (U.P.)—Dreyfus Rhoades faced death in the electric chair for the second time today when a circuit court jury recommended that he be given the extreme penalty on conviction for the murder of Simon Carle, Vincennes, Ind., policeman, in April, 1926.

Five reprieves were granted Rhoades after the first conviction before a new trial was allowed. The prisoner escaped from jail in Vincennes before retrial and was captured after a year's liberty.

TALENTED ARTISTS AT VESPER CONCERT

Emanuel Zetlin, Louis Potter and Helen Howison Give Attractive Program.

SOPRANO SOLOS FEATURE

A trio of talented musicians Emanuel Zetlin, violinist; Helen Howison, soprano, and Louis Potter, organist, yesterday afternoon gave the second of the series of vesper concerts at the Washington Auditorium recently inaugurated by Dr. Harold M. Dudley, of this city.

Emanuel Zetlin, who is a Russian, played with good technique, temperament and style. While his tone was not large, it was beautiful in quality except that now and then he marred it by what seemed to be careless playing. In the "Aria," Schumann, and "Le Streghe," Kreutzer, with its three attractive movements, the violinist displayed a mastery of harmony and double stopping.

Selections by Louis Potter, who gave the organ numbers on the program, were a distinct contribution to the concert.

Miss Howison, the soprano soloist of the afternoon, exhibited a voice which has become known to Washington music lovers and is much praised for the beauty of its tone.

There is charm in her singing. Her selections yesterday were well handled, especially the "Meditation," by Leoncavallo, with which the program closed.

Death Protest by Toral To Be Heard Thursday

Mexico City, Nov. 18 (A.P.)—The supreme court has set next Thursday to hear the appeal of Jose de Leon Toral from the death sentence imposed upon him for the assassination of Gen. Alvaro Obregon, president-elect of the republic.

At the same time the court will hear the appeal of Mother Concepcion from the twenty-year prison sentence imposed upon her as a codefendant of Toral.

Best Acre of Corn Makes 134 Bushels

Berwick, Pa., Nov. 18 (A.P.)—The best acre of corn in the United States this year yielded 134 bushels, kiln-dried and shelled. It was grown by Ray A. Briggs, 25, of Luzerne County, Pa., on ground that had been prepared for potatoes.

In addition to the national record for corn, Briggs holds the Keystone State record for potatoes. For six years he has harvested more than 400 bushels to the acre. Briggs has had unusual success also with fruits and flowers, hogs and chickens.

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Feel "All Fagged Out?" Too Often This Warns of Sluggish Kidneys.

Do you wonder why you feel so tired and languid—so lacking in ambition?

Too often this indicates sluggish kidneys and slow poisoning of the system. If you feel dull and aching, suffer drowsy headaches, dizziness, nagging backache and annoying bladder irregularities, help your kidneys with Doan's Pills.

Doan's, a stimulant diuretic, increases the secretion of the kidneys and aid in the elimination of waste impurities. They have won a world-wide reputation.

50,000 Users Endorse Doan's: Franklin Anderson, 201-A Dexter Avenue, Seattle, Wash., says: "I had an accident and I blame this for my kidney trouble. The secretions burned in passing and I had to get up night after night with pain and I felt tired, too. After using Doan's Pills I wasn't bothered any more."

W HILE the Northern Preps played a 6-0 tie game with the Brooklands, the Mardfeldt made hay while the sun shone yesterday by winning over the Petworth A. C. 13 to 0, to take the lead in the 130-pound division of the Capital City League.

In the other games, the Palace A. C. kept pace with the Brooklands for second place and also kept its winning streak intact by defeating the Columbia, 23 to 0, while the Marions advanced a notch in the race by toppling the Mercedes A. C. 12 to 0.

All of the games were well played, even the 25-0 encounter between the Palace and Columbia. In this game, the latter club put up a stubborn fight until the last quarter when the Palace gridmen started a rampage which netted 13 points. Palace was able to get but 12 points during the first half. Kick-off started.

In the Northern-Brookland game, the latter club went into a short-lived lead in the first quarter, when Holden plunged over for a touchdown after the kick-off. Houghton saved the day for the Northern by tearing off a long run in the second period which put the ball on the 5-yard line, from where Dyer plunged over. A Northern thrust was thwarted in the final quarter when the Brooklands' line held.

Gather, Clayton and Miller starred for the Mardfeldts in their win over the Petworths. All three scored touchdowns which put that team in the lead of the league. Koenig scored the lone touchdown for Petworth, in the third period.

The Marions had to battle through the entire first half before scoring against the Mercedes. R. Hughes and McGin scored touchdowns in the third and fourth quarters, respectively, and the attempted kicks, following each for the extra points, were missed by Ridgeley and R. Hughes. The Marions put up a good defensive game throughout the four quarters, which tells the reason of the Mercedes' inability to score at all.

Press Building Cardinals
Win; Cotton Is Injured

The National Press Building Cardinals defeated the Brooklands 6 to 0 yesterday and in doing so won their fifth straight game and kept one more team from crossing their goal line this season. A forward pass from Bucher to Fifer scored the touchdown that won for the Cards.

Quarter back Chamberlain Cotton, of the Cardinals, was injured in the game and was removed to Emergency Hospital. He is suffering from a possible fracture of the spine.

Almost the Naked Truth

By JAMES S. COLLINS

NEW YORK, Nov. 18 (N.Y.W.N.S.). Chick Meenan's N. Y. U. Eleven still has a chance to win the season in a game of glory. Next Saturday at Pittsburgh the men of Meenan will stand in the path of Carnegie Tech's onward rush toward the mythical Western championship. It does not seem likely that the Violet will be able to stem that rush, but stranger things have happened. N. Y. U. looked very good, indeed, in bowling over the heavy Missouri team, and it may be that Ken Strong and his mates are the line ordained to take the measure of the conquerors of the Georgetown team that defeated them. If they do, the dopsters will have a tough time unscrambling the football "championship" situation.

Colgate Eleven Was Up To Old Tricks Saturday

Colgate was up to its old tricks Saturday when it smacked Syracuse, 30 to 6. As usual, Syracuse supporters figured the team had a 50-50 chance to win and, as usual, Colgate ran Bill Orange ragged. There is food for the psychologists in the Syracuse-Colgate situation. No matter what earlier upsets they encountered, Colgate Eleven usually play inspired football against the Orange. And no matter how good a Syracuse team looks against other opponents, it usually fails to hit a nail cylinder in the game with the greatest rival. Of 30 clashes between the universities, Syracuse has been able to win but 10, being beaten 16 times and tied 4 times.

No Overconfident Saturday In Yale-Harvard Game

Neither Yale nor Harvard did anything Saturday calculated to make their followers overconfident of the result of their clash in the bowl next Saturday. The Crimson team was unimpressive in a scoreless tie with a comparatively weak Holy Cross team and Yale was played off its feet by Princeton. The return of Capt. French to the Harvard field will strengthen the team, but it will have to develop a lot more power than it showed last Saturday to avoid taking another beating at New Haven.

$500 to Insure Appearance Of Elusive Fighter

If Ruby Goldstein, the shrinking violet of the Ghetto, indulges an old habit and runs out of his engagement with Al Bryant at the Broadway Arena tomorrow night, the indulgence will cost him $500. Ben Feinberg, the promoter, knowing the temperamental Ruby's quaint custom of disappearing about ten minutes before ring time, insisted that Ruby put up a $500 appearance of forfeit. Ruby likes money as well as the next man, if not better, and there is no danger that he will blow his $500 by running out on a black cat crosses his path, a bit of shell gets into his boiled eggs or somebody speaks crossly to him.

Fuchs Likely to Give Job To Some One Else

Although Emil Fuchs insists that nothing can induce him to back out of his intention to manage his Boston Braves from the bench, it is a safe bet that he will turn over the management to some one else before the season is many days old. Strategic mistakes which in other circumstances might escape attention are sure to be magnified and the grandstand jockeys won't spare the whip once they start to ride him. If the good judge believes that he is going to get much encouragement from players on opposing teams, he is in for a sad disillusionment. He should remember the case of George Huff, a college athletic coach with no professional baseball background, who assumed the management of the Boston Red Sox some 30 years ago. After a nightmarish career of three or four days Huff Red in his job and nobody connected with professional baseball ever laid eyes on him afterward.

Pennants Tie Pierce Preps in Debut, 6 to 6

The Pennant A. C. Eleven in its opening game of the season battled the Pierce Preps of Hyattsville to a 6 to 6 tie yesterday on the Riverside gridiron. Seemingly the game was a hard fought, the touchdowns registered by each team were the result of fumbles.

Rock, Kelsey and Bedell played well for the Pennants while Fowler, West and Howard were best for the Pierce Preps. The Pennants practice tonight at the Iowa Avenue playgrounds at 7:30 o'clock in preparation for next Sunday's game with the National Press Building Cardinals.

Planskys Defeat Aztecs As Allen, Linkin Star

Allen's consistent line plunging and Capt. Linkin's heady ball carrying won for the Planskys over the Aztecs yesterday to 6. The Planskys came from behind to win out in the final quarter. For games in the 120 pound class, call West 590.

Martinelli To Sing On WRC Bill

Noted Metropolitan Tenor Is Featured Soloist for Family Party Tonight; United Choral Singers Will Sing on WMAL.

Giovanni Martinelli, tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Company, will be the featured soloist of the family party at 8:30 o'clock tonight from WRC. Supporting Mr. Martinelli will be a concert orchestra, under direction of Genaro Papi, former conductor at the Metropolitan.

Mr. Martinelli's career, which has carried him from obscurity to his present position as one of the great tenors of all time, is the more remarkable in that it has occupied less than eighteen years. His first public appearance as a vocalist was December 3, 1910, in Rossini's "Babbi Mater" in Milan.

Two weeks later, he made his operatic debut in "Ernani." Since 1913, he has been a regular member of the Metropolitan Opera Company. He has created many roles in the repertoire which he is instantly ready to sing now includes 40 operas, more than most operatic performers master in a lifetime of work.

Martinelli's radio appearances have proved him as great an artist in this specialized field as he is in his other musical activities. He succeeds as do few other operatic stars in projecting his personality over the air. As a prominent critic has said, "Martinelli is a loud speaker; he is Martinelli in person."

A radio version of Charles Francois Gounod's five-act opera, "Roméo et Juliette," will be presented by the National Grand Opera Company under direction of Cesare Soderro at 10:30 o'clock tonight. Genia Zietzka and Julian Oliver will sing the title roles. Other members of the cast include the following soloists: "Stephano," Devora Nadworny; "Gertrude," Paula Heminghaus; "Tybalt," Harold Branch; "Benvolio," Steele Jarman; "Mercutio," Frederic Baer; "Paris," Edward Wolter; "Gregorio," John Oakley; "Capulet," Theodore Webb; "Friar Laurence," Nino Rinaldi; and "Arctur," Arturo Imperia. This performance will end at midnight.

"Marche Miniature Viennoise" is a spirited composition by Fritz Kreisler and opens the program of the Gypsies at 8:30 o'clock. Under direction of Gyppay Henry Horlick, the orchestra will play a "Slavonic Dance," by the Bohemian composer, Dvorak; "When Love Comes Stealing," by Lincke, and two recent numbers, Massenet's "Elegie" and Moussorgsky's Russian folk-dance, "Gopak."

Ruth Ann Watson, mezzo-soprano, will be heard with Roy and His Gang at 7:30 o'clock this evening.

The United Choral Singers will be heard in a request program to be broadcast by station WMAL at 8:30 o'clock this evening. The complete program follows: "Kerry Dance," Mollie United Choral Singers; "Three Chifers," Truine, men's voices; "At the Angelus," Collingie, choral singers and orchestra; "Song of the Clock," Collingie, choral singers and orchestra; "The Bohemian Girl," Balfe, choral singers; "Silent O' My Love," Old Irish arranged by Seymour, choral singers; "Minuet," Padernowski and "Battle Hymn of the Republic," choral singers and orchestra.

The complete schedule for the United States Orchestra includes "A Kiss From You," "Tango Dream," "Chopiniana," "The Dream of You," "For You, Bright Eyes," "The Heart of Her," "Russian Peasant Dance," "Muddy Water," "Serenade," and "Roses of Picardy."

An hour of dance music by David McWilliams and his orchestra will be broadcast from the Swanee ballroom, beginning at midnight.

The concert trio of the Carolinians Orchestra, under direction of Ralph H. Garren, will be broadcast at 6:30 o'clock from WOL. A short piano recital by Warner Kennedy is to be heard at 6 o'clock.

The Man Who Has Been Waiting to Consult

This strange man sees the way and tells it all. Just what your life has been, just what it will be. Tells you when and whom you will marry, whether husband, wife or sweetheart is true or false. Tells you changes, travel, lost or absent friends, divorce, will, death, whether it is best to buy or sell. He tells the good and bad of the future. Tells you exactly what you want to know.

Nothing equals women's natural beauty or the radiance of girlhood's glowing freshness. Today, at forty women are not as old-looking as they were a few years back. And complexion once despaired of are regaining former loveliness.

The secret is a simple home beauty treatment. Follow it night and morning and your skin will keep its natural loveliness. Follow these directions:

First, work up a lather of the palm and olive oils embodied in Palmolive soap. Massage them into the skin with your two hands until they penetrate and gently cleanse the pores of powder, rouge and dirt. Then rinse, first with warm water, then with cold. Do this daily without fail.

Women by the thousands will tell you it is the best way they know to prevent blackheads, blemishes, enlarged pores and common skin faults.

Note the natural glow of girlhood days that follows its use. Use only Palmolive—a soap made for one purpose—to safeguard good complexion. 10 cents everywhere. Colgate-Palmolive-Fest Co., Chicago, Ill.

Assistant State's Attorney

Slain After His Colleague

Phoned, Says Gangster.

ANOTHER INQUIRY IS SEEN

Chicago, Nov. 18 (United Press).—Investigation of the murder of William H. McSwiggin, young assistant State's attorney, more than two years ago, may be resumed by a coroner's jury Monday, when the case is due for another call by Coroner Oscar Wolf.

McSwiggin was killed with machine-gun bullets by several gangsters who sped by a street car in Chicago, where the prosecutor was standing. From time to time for the last two years the investigation has been resumed but the murderers never have been caught.

New evidence is reported to be in the hands of Coroner Wolf. He is said to have received a letter from a man in the State's attorney's office the day styles himself "a former member of the Egan Rats," a St. Louis gang.

The writer of the letter said he was in the State's attorney's office the day

McSwiggin was killed and that an official presumably called a Chicago gangster and told him the assistant prosecutor would be there in a short time. Later he heard that McSwiggin had been killed in Chicago.

The official, the gangster said, threatened him with "serious consequences" if he revealed the conversation to authorities.

The coroner's jury, composed of some of Chicago's wealthiest men, is called the "millionaire jury." It is headed by President Joseph Noel of Noel's National Bank. The jury hired private investigators at its own expense to gather evidence.

A report current today was to the effect that the scheduled adjournment of the coroner's jury would be postponed until after December 3, when new officials go into office in Cook County.

LEGAL RECORD

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 17, 1928.

COURT OF APPEALS.

No session. Adjourned until next day.
